

STORAGE EGGS ARE SOLD AS FRESH AT HIGH PRICES

Some Retailers Take Advantage of Relaxation of Laws—Extra Firsts 9 Cents.

By P. Q. Fog.

(Special Food Expert of The Evening World.) Owing to the present scarcity of strictly fresh eggs, the grade known as Western Firsts sold on the Mercantile Exchange to-day at 88 cents, while Western Extra Firsts were selling at 91 cents.

Eggs of the quality known as Current Receipts were reported in abundant quantity, selling at from 60 cents to 70 cents, but owing to the shortage of labor and high prices demanded by egg candlers, dealers are buying a premium for eggs requiring no special labor.

The retail price on storage eggs at some of the chain stores is from 50 cents to 65 cents while a heavy supply is wholesaling at from 62 cents to 65 cents.

Due to the relaxation of laws regulating the sale of this grade to consumers, some retailers, it was said, are selling storage eggs as new-laid and charging from 55 cents to 90 cents a dozen for them.

HOW TO EXTRACT SUGAR FROM WOOD DISCOVERED

Chemists at the University of Munich Credited With Finding the Method.

BERLIN, Dec. 8.—German chemists of the University of Munich, headed by Prof. Willstätter, have succeeded in extracting sugar from wood, and now are working on a process which they believe will make this source of sugar profitable, according to information here.

The chemists worked out a process, which includes the treatment of wood pulp with hydrochloric acid and the subsequent extraction of the sugar. The promoters claim they have already overcome most of the technical difficulties.
Sugar in Germany now can be obtained only in the larger hotels and through illicit traders.
